KIKSTATIM DEI WANTAIM

The Chaos theory in PNG politics

IS THE National Alliance in disarray? The answer is both a "yes" and a "no" for obvious reasons. Firstly, the party as a whole is not in disarray. The only people in disarray are the highlander politicians and their supporters. This is the result of a classic case of divide and rule tactics played by the Kitchen Cabinet in the Somare Government.

However, even the kitchen cabinet is having obvious hiccups right now. Whilst outwardly, the Momase region is said to be supporting Patrick Prauitch for the position of a Deputy PM after Sam Abal picks up the PMship, our view is that one should not jump too quickly to conclusions on the question of party leadership, the office of the DPM and even the Office of the PM.

All these positions are still there for the taking as the kitchen cabinet continues its wheeling and dealing and trading in head-hunting and head-counting.

What we are now seeing are mere ripples of some form of political manipulation behind the scene. We have yet to see who is playing what games and for whose political and economic gain.

To start with, why was Sir Michael's medical condition not made public 10 weeks ago? Why was it that Sir Michael's medical condition was kept a family secret for all this time whilst the people of Papua New Guinea were screaming for information on the medical condition of their prime minister?

Is it possible that people in the kitchen cabinet were using the PM to gain political advantage over their opponents? And if we are correct to guess that Sir Michael was being used as a ploy all this time (of silence) to assist certain politicians into important positions of power, then how does one explain Arthur Somare's statement to parliament about the state of the prime minister's health now and not 10 to 12 weeks ago? Does this mean that the job of allocating jobs to the boys is now almost complete, hence the public announcement? Nobody is impressed by the recent statement made by Arthur Somare.

Firstly, Papua New Guineans are not interested in the views of the Somare family members as to whether Sir Michael is fit to return to the Office of the PM. This is strictly an occasion which must speak for itself. The Office of the PM is not a hereditary position for the family to determine whether he returns to that Office. In our view, it is a public office, therefore whether it requires to be filled by another elected leader is to be determined by the elected leaders of this country (not the Somare family) and it ought to follow the event and be determined accordingly.

For the Somare family to say that they will make the announcement whether Sir Michael returns to office, is like saying that the fellow is now totally incapable of using his mental faculties, hence the family must make the decision. Why can't they simply tell us that Sir Michael is not medically fit to resume duties as the PM? What is so difficult about making one honest decision for a change?

And getting back to the political front, it has finally happened that Peter O'Neill got the boot as we predicted. And true to form, the Engan A/PM put Polye, another Engan out of the way. And in order to clear the pathway to various secret bank accounts in Swiss Banks, Duma was also told to pack up and make way for the pack to move in to check on their hoard.

And is there any truth in the media that a resolution sacking Abal from NA has been sent to the NA Office in Port Moresby and that the Resolution has been accepted. Okay, now that Abal too must go, who picks up the Acting PM's position?

With all these sackings of members of political parties, it is now for Sir Kina Bona, the Registrar of Political Parties, to tell the nation what the political party status of each of the members who have been "sacked" by various political parties like URP sacking Potape and Agiru and NA sacking Abal. Well, what is the current legal status quo of these leaders who have lost their individual status as members of each of these parties?

As we pointed out earlier in this column, we repeat that what we are seeking now are ripples of things happening behind the scene. There is a lot of wheeling and dealing going on behind the scene. The problem is a little complicated because both Patrick Prauitch and Arthur Somare are up there on stage trying to defend themselves against charges laid by the Ombudsman Commission (OC). And with these charges being considered at about the same time that the political infighting is going on, it is surely not a healthy sign for both of them.

Patrick Prauitch is the Deputy Leader of NA for Momase Region. And this is a position that was given to Prauitch in Kokopo, despite Arthur Somare's outburst in front of the Chief for being overlooked in favour of Patrick. When the time came to nominate Deputy Leaders of NA, the Chief had no doubt that he wanted Prauitch for the job, whereas Arthur had other ideas. And now, with the Chief leaving the post of parliamentary Leader of NA, it is now open to all the deputy leaders to nominate for the job. But will they?

As far as Sam Abal is concerned, there is no vacancy for the post of parliamentary leader of NA. In other words, that is a foregone conclusion. Given that Abal is already the A/PM, that post automatically belongs to him; the NA must give it to him. However, this is not the way the 4 deputies and the rest of the members of NA are thinking. As far as they are concerned, there is a vacancy in the post, so NA must follow due process and appoint its PM that way. In other words, there cannot be any short cut.

The problem with NA is that things are not happening by consensus within the party. Everyone within the party vying for the post of PM has his own small factions to support him. Take the case of Patrick Prauitch who had been courting Peter O'Neill ever since he became the Finance Minister. And before he left the Ministry, he ensured that his mate O'Neill took his job and he did. Patrick wanted O'Neill's support to the top post.

However, since Patrick came back and took his job back, O'Neill is no longer putting his weight behind Prauitch in the fight for that top job. O'Neill is now frantically looking elsewhere for courtship and network building. In our view, the bigger loser here is Patrick Prauitch, because he is now isolated from O'Neill. He has no highlands supporters.

Don Polye was the next Deputy NA leader whose fate was determined by someone else behind the scene. Abal was imported from Polye's Enga country to fight Polye. And what better way can there be; get an Engan to fight an Engan! That was a superb idea of some superhuman force acting behind the scene. Obviously, Polye did not see it and least of all did Abal see it.

The guts of it all are that these two were singled out to eliminate each other. It is not only a classic case of divide and rule; it is much more than that. It is a simple case of getting two opponents to eliminate each other to clear the stage for someone else to move in.

Now with NA Momase in suspense and NA Highlands in chaos, that would leave us with NGL and the Southern Regions intact (supposedly). It is one of those curious things with their source being historical fact, and that is that NGL politicians do find common ground when dealing with Momase politicians and not the highlands and Papuan politicians.

If we stretch this reasoning a little further it comes to this that NGL leaders will be talking to the Momase pack to resolve the political chaos now being played out in the open. And if they need numbers, they will be engaging the Papuans to fill any gaps.

We have said it openly in this column that Leo Deon of East New Britain is one politician with personal integrity. If he makes the choice to run for the job of leader of the NA party in parliament, he would win on merit alone. The Papuan leadership of NA should side with Deon for no other reason than that Deon is a true leader with personal integrity unlike many. Thus, with Papua under his belt, Deon should pick up the Momase members who must be fed up with Sir Michael Somare's kitchen cabinet members who have been manipulating the national government for too long.

And who is behind the scene manipulating this political puppet show which is now unfolding itself? The members of the Somare's kitchen cabinet, of course, but with the Chief out of action, it is now the case of every man and his dog for himself. But the curious thing here is that with the Chief safely out of reach in Singapore, our hunch is that someone walked into the scene and set to work building his web, getting people caught and destroyed, and putting others out of action by getting them entangled within the web. There surely is a phantom at work here.

It seems as if this phantom has a golden egg that he must protect at all times. Therefore, between now and the national elections next year, he is frantically working around the clock to ensure that the egg is protected where it is parked for incubation. He has built a visionary empire all sketched along the lines of the Greek Parthenon and extending from the Middle East to the Swiss Alps. He has envisioned it all in his mind and feels that given time he will be the Kublai Khan of the Pacific, or the Pacific version of Julius Caesar of the Roman World. He has big ideas, this guy; and most of them are dangerous ideas; dangerous both for himself and for others as well, especially those politicians stupid enough to follow him or get caught in his web of fantasy.

And will this phantom make it back to the parliament after the national elections? Yes, that has been arranged as far as he is concerned. He now owns a helicopter company with a fast growing fleet of helicopters. To start with, he has a K60 million contract from the National Electoral Commission to ferry electoral officers around the country. And it is rumoured that the helicopters will also be used to swap ballot boxes from their points of pick up and whilst the genuine boxes will be dropped off elsewhere to be destroyed, the ones carrying false ballot papers will be dropped at officially designated points to be ferried to the counting centres under police escort.

What happens if NA loses the national elections? If that were to happen, which is highly unlikely, the NA members behind this push for power will simply buy off all non NA members and that way form another NA led government to maintain its economic positioning. With the LNG Gas Project under way and all that money floating around the country, and more to come when the project goes into production, the present batch of politicians in power will not allow anybody to get them off the scene that easily.

There is just too much money at stake. That is, NA must get back to power at any cost.

Five more years with NA? Yes, NA, but guess who would be the one doing business under the label, "NA"?

Yes, we have to fasten our seat belts for another rough ride for 5 more years under NA government after the 2012 national elections. And then another 25 more years after that.

NA will be in power for 30 years which is the life of the LNG Project. Read the US$2 Billion Loans Agreement between the State and the Middle East Lenders. You will then get the idea of what is coming your way.

CENSUS INTERVIEWERS TRAINING

About 40 thousand "knowledgeable" Papua New Guineans stand ready at all Local Level Governments (LLG) to undergo intense training before they go out and conduct the 2011 National Population and Housing Census.

The week long trainings from Monday 4th July will be conducted simultaneously in each of the 339 LLG centers through the country.

This is the final and most important of the Three-Tier-Training for all those involved in conducting the whole Census exercise.

Almost all LLG Centers have received their training materials and are set to commence except Western Province and the Autonomous Region of Bougainville.

Senior Logistical Officer with the National Census Office (NSO) Mr. Heni Frank, said the two areas are proving to be a "logistical nightmare".

Mr. Frank said irregular water transport schedules coupled with load requirements by operators have led to delays in getting the training materials to the LLGs of the two provinces on time.

But Mr. Frank said such hick-ups were expected and he expressed optimism that the materials will be delivered to the respect LLGs before the training begins.

Materials for the last training phase include training manuals, census pads or questionnaire forms, posters, brochures and events books among others.

The first training in Port Moresby last month was the training of master trainers. They consisted of key NSO personnel and nominated Officers from National Departments and the Provinces.

The master trainers then went out and conducted Provincial Trainers Trainings, the second level, at main centers in all the Provinces from the 13th – 17th June.

The Provincial trainers (retired or existing civil servants) who represented the various LLGs will now be at the fore-front to prepare enumerators in their respective centers to begin the week's training on Monday.

The final of the Three-Tier-Training is a massive exercise in which about 40,000 people will be trained on how to conduct the census when they visit every house-hold from the 11th – 17th July.

Census Director, Mrs. Hajily Kele, expressed satisfaction that the whole training schedule is being completed as planned. Mrs. Kele said they allowed for at least a week in between each training level to off-set delays and this has proved useful in the overall planning.

The engagement of "knowledgeable" people as enumerators has been emphasized by the Government.

In announcing the Census this year, the Minister for National Planning and District Services, the Hon. Paul Tiensten, challenged NSO to attain quality data.

Hon. Tiensten said the engagement of knowledgeable interviewers will result in the gathering of quality data which is needed by the Government to Plan development and empower the people through effective service delivery.

Last week, Hon. Tiensten announced an update on the preparations towards the census and with just two weeks before the enumeration week, he assured the Government and people that NSO will deliver.

Ramu NiCo ready to deliver

In a little more than two years, Ramu NiCo has successfully constructed the multi billion Kina Ramu Nickel Project and now progressively commissioning it.

After obtaining necessary approvals and finalizing technical preparations, Ramu NiCo commenced the large scale construction in late half of 2008. Up to now, all major construction work at the Krumbukari mine site and Basamuk refinery are completed and the Project is in commissioning stage. Even internationally, this is not a speed normally seen in developing a Project of such a size and against challenging geographic and infrastructure conditions.

These figures can provide a sense of the magnitude of the work completed:

- Over 4.5 million cubic meters of earth work completed
- Nearly 195,000 cubic meters of concrete laid
- Nearly 48,000 tons steel structures erected, half of which is non-standard
- Over 2,000 units of equipment installed
- Over 227 km of drainage and process pipe laid (in addition to the 135 km slurry pipeline)
